PHD FELLOWSHIPS

Boehringer Ingelheim Fonds

Description:
Boehringer Ingelheim Fonds invites applications for its PhD fellowships. These support basic biomedical research conducted by scientists not older than 27 years of age in an internationally leading laboratory in Europe. The research should be aimed at elucidating basic biological phenomena of human life and acquiring new scientific knowledge. Applicants will hold a diploma or equivalent degree and have passed their state examinations when applicable. At the deadline, applicants should not have worked on their project for longer than six months. Applicants should be European citizens working in Europe or overseas or non-

European citizens pursuing their PhD project in Europe. Scholarships are granted for at least two years, with the option of renewal for a further 12 months. The basic monthly grant is worth €1,550. In most countries scholars are paid an additional €150 per month to cover minor project-related costs such as books and travelling expenses and premiums for personal insurance. A separate country-related premium is added and spouse or child allowance may be available.

Closing date: 01 Oct 14
Deadline information: Deadlines on: 1 October 2014, 1 February 2015, 1 June 2015, and repeated annually.

PHILIP WRIGHTSON POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

Neurological Foundation of New Zealand

Description
The Neurological Foundation of New Zealand invites applications for the Philip Wrightson postdoctoral fellowships. These support graduates who have recently completed a degree at doctoral level to conduct research in scientific fields of relevance to neurology. The purpose is to provide personal support for research, usually to widen the fellows' experience in a different institution, and to assist them at the end of the fellowship to become established as independent researchers in New Zealand. Each applicant for the fellowship should be a New Zealand citizen or permanent resident and should have completed a PhD. Applications would normally be made within three years of graduating PhD or equivalent. Postdoctoral fellowships are tenable within New Zealand and overseas universities, hospitals or research institutions approved by the foundation. The foundation will accept applications designed to further the knowledge and treatment of primary neuropsychiatric or neuropsychological disorders, as long as the research takes a mechanistic approach to discovering or treating a component of the disorder that might be due to an underlying neurological problem. Applications which deal only with the clinical management of mental health disorders will not be considered.

The fellowship funds salary only for two years.

Closing date: 01 Oct 14

ACADEMIC SCHOLARSHIP FUND

Society for Reproduction and Fertility

Description
The Society for Reproduction and Fertility invites applications for its academic scholarship fund. This aims to help society members develop and maintain their research programmes. Types of activities supported include small pump-priming grants to generate preliminary data, travel and subsistence for a period of sabbatical leave, and bridging funds to help retain staff.

The applicant must be a current, active, fully paid member of the society and have been a member for at least five continuous years. They must have an academic post for the duration of the award. The maximum amount awarded will be £10,000. Awards will be paid to the applicant's institution.

IRVINGTON POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Cancer Research Institute

Description
The Cancer Research Institute invites applications for the Irvington postdoctoral fellowships. These support young scientists at leading universities and research centres around the world who wish to receive training in cancer immunology. Projects should be hypothesis driven, mechanistic studies that directly impact understanding of the immune system's role in cancer risk, tumour initiation, progression, metastasis, host response to tumours or the treatment of cancer. Applicants must have a doctoral degree and up to five years of relevant postdoctoral experience, with the exception of MD applicants, who should not include years of residency in this calculation. A sponsor who holds a formal appointment at the host institution, which should be a non-profit institution anywhere in the world, is required. Only one fellow per sponsor may apply per application round.

Each fellowship is worth up to US$164,500 over three years. This includes a stipend of US$50,000 for the first year, US$53,000 for the second year and US$57,000 for the third year plus an annual allowance of US$1,500 to the host institution to help pay for the fellow's research supplies, travel to scientific meetings or health insurance.

Closing date: 01 Oct 14
Deadline information: Applications due by 5pm EST. Deadlines on: 1 October 2014, 1 April 2015, and repeated annually.

JESSUP AND MCHENRY AWARDS

Academy of Natural Sciences

Description:
The Academy of Natural Sciences invites applications for the Jessup and McHenry awards. Jessup funds are awarded competitively to students wishing to conduct research projects at the postgraduate, doctoral and postdoctoral levels. Such studies may be in any specialty in which curators have expertise. The McHenry fund is similarly intended, but is restricted to botanists.

Awards are restricted to those who wish to conduct their study at the academy.

The minimum duration of an award is two weeks; the maximum is 16 weeks. The stipend for subsistence is $375 per week.

Round-trip travel costs up to a total of $500 for North American applicants, including Mexico and the Caribbean, and $1,000 for applicants from other parts of the world may be available.

TWAS FELLOWSHIPS FOR RESEARCH AND ADVANCED TRAINING

TWAS

Description

The World Academy of Sciences invites applications for its fellowships for research and advanced training. These enable young scientists from developing countries to spend between three and 12 months at a research institution in a developing country other than their own. This scheme is designed to enhance the research capacity of promising, early-career scientists working in any area of the natural sciences.
Developing-country nationals who hold at least an MSc or equivalent may apply. Applicants should be employed by a research institution in a developing country. Although there is no age limit, preference will be given to young scientists at the beginning of their career, as well as to those working in least developed countries. Institutes of the Chinese Academy of Sciences are not eligible host institutions under this programme.

Fellowships include international economy airfare and a monthly allowance of up to US$300. The host institution is expected to provide accommodation and food, as well as research facilities.

Closing date: 01 Oct 14
Deadline information: This call is repeated once a year.
Posted date: 06 Jan 14
Award type: Predoctoral fellowships, Early-Career fellowships, Young investigator awards, Predoctoral training fellowships, Postdoctoral training fellowships, Travel for research purposes, Directed grants for individual investigators

SHORT-TERM RESEARCH TRAINING FELLOWSHIPS

European Respiratory Society

Description:
The European Respiratory Society invites applications for its short-term research training fellowships. These seek to advance respiratory medicine and science by helping scientists and clinicians to visit other research laboratories or clinical units with the aim of learning a research technique not available in the home institute.

Candidates must be ERS members holding a PhD or having at least graduated with an MD, MSc or equivalent. Applications are also accepted from non-MD qualified healthcare professionals working in respiratory medicine or health. Priority will be given to candidates in the early stages of their career. The fellowships are open to all nationalities and for European and non-European based candidates. The home institute and host institute should be in different countries.

Within the short-term fellowship programme, four special short-term fellowships have been designed, these are as follows:

- ERS and AMIRA joint fellowship - applicants may be from Italy going to another European country or from Europe or overseas going to Italy;
- ERS PHA - aims to support projects in the broad field of pulmonary circulation where the qualified candidate must go to an European country;
- ERS and EMBO joint fellowship - aims to support projects in the field of molecular biology where at least the home or host country must be an EMBC member state;
- Walter Guerrero Ciquero TB fellowship - aims to support young doctors from low-income countries to carried out research projects in a European research centre;
- ERS international fellowships - up to two international fellowships per application round are available for European based scientists going to a country outside Europe.

Applicants for specific fellowships which made it to the top-ranking and fail to be selected will still be granted a standard ERS fellowship. Awards cover travel and living expenses, plus subsistence for dependants below 16 years. Awards last for between one and three months. Approximately 15 fellowships will be awarded.

SUBMILLIMETER ARRAY POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Smithsonian Institution

Description:
The Smithsonian Institution Astrophysical Observatory, in partnership with the Academia Sinica Institute of Astronomy and Astrophysics in Taiwan, invites applicants for its Submillimeter Array postdoctoral fellowships. These support research associated with the Submillimeter Array radio interferometer, which is supported from offices in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

The SMA is primarily used for imaging molecular lines and dust continuum in cold interstellar clouds. However, fellows may structure their research in submillimetre astronomy freely, whether their interest lies in astronomical observations, their interpretation through theoretical research, or receiver and electronics development.

Applicants must have a recent PhD in astronomy or a related field. Experience in millimetre or submillimetre astronomy, radio interferometry, radio frequency instrumentation, or research in processes in the interstellar medium is desirable. Fellowships include a stipend, which was worth US$57,000 in 2012, full health insurance coverage and up to US$3,000 for relocation expenses. Each fellowship is awarded for two years with renewal for third year likely.

Smithsonian Institution

Description

The Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysicists invites applications for its Center for Astrophysics postdoctoral fellowships postdoctoral fellowships. These support researchers who have recently received their PhD and display significant promise in theory, observation, instrumentation or laboratory experiments in the field of astrophysics. Research is supported under the following six divisions:

- atomic and molecular physics;
- high energy astrophysics;
- optical and infrared astronomy;
- radio and geoastronomy;
- solar, stellar, and planetary sciences;
- theoretical astrophysics.

The fellowships last for a period of two years but may be renewed for a third year, contingent upon satisfactory progress. The fellowships include a stipend of approximately US$65,500 per year with a research budget of US$16,000, and funds for health benefits and relocation expenses. Applicants must have at least one first-author refereed journal paper including submitted papers, at the time of application. Applications will only be considered from candidates who received their PhD between 1 January 2012 and 1 September 2013.

RADCLIFFE INSTITUTE HUMANITIES, SOCIAL SCIENCES AND CREATIVE ARTS FELLOWSHIPS

Harvard University

Description
Harvard University's Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study invites applications for humanities, social sciences and creative arts fellowships. These support scholars and artists who wish to be in residence at the Radcliffe Institute and pursue an independent project in the humanities and social sciences and in the creative arts.

Fellows are expected to reside in the Boston area and to be free of their regular commitments so they may devote themselves full time to the work outlined in their proposal.

Scholars in any field with a doctorate or appropriate terminal degree at least two years prior to appointment in the area of the proposed project are eligible to apply. Only scholars who have published at least two articles in refereed journals or edited collections are eligible to apply. Artists and writers need not to have a PhD to apply. However, they must meet other specific eligibility requirements.

Stipends are worth up to US$75,000 for one year with additional funds for project expenses. Some support for relocation expenses is provided where relevant. Fellows receive office or studio space and access to libraries and other resources of Harvard University.

MEDICAL RESEARCH POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Fragile X Research Foundation of Canada

Description
The Fragile X Research Foundation of Canada and the Canadian Institutes of Health Research invite applications for their medical research postdoctoral fellowships. These support postdoctoral fellows who want to pursue research in Fragile X as well as investigator-initiated pilot studies aimed at developing and characterising new therapeutic approaches for the treatment and ultimate cure of Fraxile 8 syndrome.

Particular interest is on pre-clinical studies of potential pharmaceutical and genetic treatments and studies aimed at understanding the function of the FMR1 gene. Preference is given to projects that have a clear practical application and the results of which will be shared with other qualified researchers in a timely fashion.

Applying institutions must be exempt from federal income taxes, with preference given to institutions within Canada. Individuals nominated by the institutions should have training and experience at least equal to the PhD or MD level. Fellowships include a salary of up to CA$40,000 per year plus up to CA$2,500 per year for fringe benefits or travel to meetings. Funding is awarded for one year, but may be renewed for a second year.

DENNIS WEATHERSTONE PREDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Autism Speaks

Description:
Autism Speaks invites applications for its predoctoral fellowships programme. This aims to provide highly qualified candidates with exceptional research training opportunities broadly related to the study of autism spectrum disorders. General areas of research interest include: behavioral, psychosocial and educational challenges; family issues; language and communication; environmental factors; epidemiology and public health; health services research; genetics and genomics; medical and psychiatric co-morbidities; biomedical and pharmacological interventions; developmental biology; neuroscience; physiology and anatomy; and technology development.

Work in the following research areas is particularly encouraged:

- understanding environmental risk factors and their interaction with genetic susceptibility to enable prevention and improve diagnosis and treatment;
- discovering biomarkers to improve risk assessment and subtype stratification that will allow for an individualized approach to treatment;
- improving quality of life through more effective medicines, behavioral interventions and technologies;
- enhancing diagnosis and treatment of under-served and under-studied populations
- dissemination and implementation of evidence-based clinical practices to the broader community worldwide.

Applications are invited from predoctoral students interested in pursuing a career in autism research. Candidates must be enrolled in a programme leading to a research doctorate such as a PhD or ScD, or a combined degree such as an MD, in an academic department of an accredited university, or health or medical institution. Prior to application, predoctoral candidates must have identified a mentor.

The two-year fellowship is worth US$29,500 per year.

AWARDS FOR PUBLISHED WORK

Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining

Description:

The Institute of Materials, Minerals and Mining invites nominations for its awards for published work. These awards are made for publications of particular merit, in the form of papers, or groups of papers, published by the institute in journals within a two-year period preceding the year of the awards. The awards span the whole field of materials production, processing, structure, properties and applications and their interrelationships, and cover scientific and technological aspects of the spectrum of material types including biomaterials and electronic materials. The following awards are available:

- the Adrian Normanton medal: for the best technical paper on the topic of steelmaking, or casting published in Ironmaking and Steelmaking;
- the Alan Glanvill award: for published work of particular merit in the field of polymers;
- the Billiton Gold medal: for the best paper published in Transactions C: Mineral Processing and Extractive Metallurgy. Based on recommendations received from the Transactions editorial boards. Medal to lead author and certificate to each author;
- composite award: for published work of particular merit in the field of composites;
- the Cook/Ablett award: for published work of particular merit in the field of metals;
- the Douglas Hay medal: for the best paper published in Transactions A: Mining Technology. Based on recommendations received from the Transactions editorial boards. Medal to lead author and certificate to each author;
- the Guy Bengough award: for a paper published by the institute that makes a contribution to the subject of corrosion and degradation of all types of materials and their control;
- the James S Walker award: for a student project, already examined, on the subject of polymers;
- the Mann Redmayne medal: to a member of IOM3 or AusIMM for the best paper published in the Transactions of the Institutions of Mining and Metallurgy. The medal and certificate will be presented to the first author with preference to research students or those in the early part of their industry career. A certificate will be provided to all other authors. The award is supported jointly with AusIMM;
- materials world medal: an annual award to recognise the important feature or review of published during the year within the institute's member magazines. Nominations proposed from the magazine group and membership to be reviewed by the awards committee. Medal to lead author and certificate to each author;
- the Pfeil award: for published work of particular merit in the field of ceramics;
- the Wardell Armstrong prize: for the best paper published in Transactions B: Applied Earth Science. Based on the recommendations received for the Transactions editorial boards. Crystal bowl to lead author and certificate to each author;
- the Williams award: for a paper of particular merit concerned with the manufacture and use of iron and steel.

The following awards are made but not included in the selection procedure apart from requiring council approval:

- the Charles Hatchett award: for the best paper on the science and technology of niobium and its alloys. Sponsored by Comphania Brasileira de Metalurgia e

Mineracao and is selected by the Charles Hatchett Award International Panel;

- the Harvey Flower Titanium prize: offered by the Titanium Information Group, established researchers and materials engineers in the field. The winning entry will contribute most constructively to an improved understanding of titanium metallurgy or alloy development, a new application for titanium or titanium alloys, a significant extension of the use of titanium, enhancement of the performance of titanium in an existing application or any other scientific or technological innovation or improvement in connection with the production, processing and use of titanium and its alloys. Prize value £500;
- the Vanadium award: for the most outstanding paper in the metallurgy and technology of vanadium and its alloys. Sponsored and selected by the Vanadium International Technical Committee.

The awards aim to recognise and encourage the achievements of early career scientists and technologists in industry, university or research organisations. However, publications by more senior workers will also be considered. Self-nominations will not be accepted.
Each award is worth £450.

COLGATE-PALMOLIVE AWARDS FOR STUDENT RESEARCH TRAINING IN ALTERNATIVE METHODS SOCIETY OF TOXICOLOGY

Description:
The Society of Toxicology invites applications for the Colgate-Palmolive awards for student research training in alternative methods. These enhance graduate student research training by using in vitro methods or alternative techniques to reduce, replace or refine use of animals in toxicological research. The training may include use of in vitro and ex vivo procedures, non-mammalian animal models, computer modelling and structure-activity relationships.

Graduate students may propose to develop expertise in relevant methodologies at a laboratory away from their home institution; at a laboratory at their home institution that would not be available to them otherwise; or at approved workshops, symposia or continuing education programmes where hands-on training will be received. The training should help toxicology graduate students enhance their thesis or dissertation research.

Applicants must be enrolled in PhD or MS study in the discipline of toxicology and be student members or pending student members of the SOT at the application deadline.
Each award is worth US$3,750.

FELLOWSHIPS

British Council for Prevention of Blindness

Description
The British Council for Prevention of Blindness invites applications for its fellowships. These support research and training to prevent blindness in low-income countries. Two fellowships are available: the

Sir John Wilson fellowship for a fellow from overseas and the Barrie Jones fellowship for a fellow from the UK.

Candidates must be clinicians or scientists from the UK or overseas; overseas candidates must be nationals of low-income countries. Clinicians must be specialising in ophthalmology and intending to pursue a career that includes academic research or teaching. Except in exceptional circumstances, clinicians will be required to register for an MD or a PhD. Non-clinical candidates will normally be postdoctoral scientists who work in blindness prevention, for example as epidemiologists, health economists or public health specialists. All candidates must apply jointly with a supervisor who holds an established academic post in the candidate's proposed host institution, which must be a UK university, research institution or research-active NHS Trust.

Fellowships cover the candidate's salary at the appropriate level plus fees, travel, equipment and research expenses, up to £63,333 per year for a maximum of three years.

HIV SCHOLARSHIPS

HIV Research Trust

Description

The HIV Research Trust invites applications for its scholarships. These enable investigators in resource-poor countries to travel to other centres to acquire the skills necessary to conduct their research more effectively upon returning to their host institution. All areas of research related to HIV are supported, including laboratory methods, epidemiology, clinical and therapeutic research and research into psychological, social and other aspects of the daily care of patients.

The preference is for applicants to receive training in recognised centres in other resource-poor countries, although travel to other areas is not excluded. The usual period of support is two to six months, but support for one year may be given. Scholarships provide support for travel and living expenses, including accommodation, and possibly laboratory expenses at the visiting institution. The maximum sum available is £10,000.

MATHEMATICAL SCIENCES POSTDOCTORAL RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS

National Science Foundation

Description:
The National Science Foundation's directorate for mathematical and physical sciences solicits proposals for its mathematical sciences postdoctoral research fellowships. The purpose of the MSPRF programme is to support future leaders in the mathematical sciences by enabling them to participate in research environments that will have maximum impact on their future scientific development. There are two options for awardees: research fellowship and research instructorship. Awards will support research in areas of the mathematics and statistics, including applications to other disciplines.

The anticipated funding amount is US$5 million subject to availability of funds. Fellowship awards are for a total of US$150,000, with a possible additional allowance of up to US$20,000 for awards with international host institutions. The research fellowship option provides full-time support for any 18 academic-year months in a three-year period, in intervals not shorter than three consecutive months. The research instructorship option provides a combination of full-time and half-time support over a period of three academic years, usually one academic year full-time and two academic years half time. Under both options, the award includes six summer months; however, no more than two summer months of support may be received in any calendar year. Under both options, the stipend support for 24 months (18 academic-year months plus six summer months) will be provided within the 48-month duration of the award. The MSPR fellowships are awarded to individuals. Fellows must not be affiliated with institutions or organisations. Applicants must: be US citizens, nationals, or legally admitted permanent resident aliens; not have held the doctoral degree more than two years as of January 1 of the year of the award; propose research in the mathematical sciences; not have previously received a federal research grant; not submit a research plan duplicated in another NSF proposal; and not previously been offered an award by the MSPRF programme. NSF 12-496 (replaces NSF 11-541).

RESIDENTAL FELLOWSHIPS

University of Notre Dame

Description:
The Notre Dame Institute for Advanced Study invites applications for its residential fellowships. These support research addressing ultimate questions at the intersection of the arts, engineering, humanities, law, and natural, physical and social sciences, especially those which transcend disciplinary boundaries.

The institute welcomes applications from faculty, scholars, public intellectuals, fellows from other institutes, and professional researchers in all disciplines with projects that are creative, innovative, or align with the intellectual orientation of NDIAS. Scholars from other institutions, researchers at national laboratories, fellows from other institutes, as well as faculty from Notre Dame are invited to apply, and there are no citizenship requirements for fellowships.

Fellowships are available for a period ranging from three weeks to one full academic year. Grants are worth up to US$60,000 per academic year pro-rata and include research expenditures of up to US$1,000, a private office in the Institute, a computer and printer, access to university libraries and other facilities, and weekly institute seminars and events. An allowance for subsidised housing is also available.

Closing date: 15 Oct 14
Deadline information: Submissions are due by 11.59pm EDT.

BATTERY DIVISION RESEARCH AWARD

Electrochemical Society

Description:
The Electrochemical Society invites applications for the battery division research award. The purpose of the award is to encourage excellence in battery and fuel cell research. The award recognises outstanding contributions to the science of primary and secondary cells and batteries and fuel cells. Although this award is not limited to any particular age group, its primary purpose is to develop interest in battery and fuel cell science among younger electrochemists.

Applicants must be members of the society. Factors such as the length of membership, number of publications, sex, age, colour, race, political affiliation or nationality shall not be considered.

The award comprises a prize of US$2,000 and free division membership. If the award is made jointly to two or more co-authors, each co-author shall receive the prize in full.

DISTINGUISHED LORENTZ FELLOWSHIP

Lorentz Center

Description:
The Lorentz Center, together with the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities and Social Sciences, invites nominations for the distinguished Lorentz fellowship. This is awarded to a leading scientist working on cutting-edge research at the interface between the humanities or social sciences and the natural or technological sciences. The fellowship includes:

- 10 months of on-campus study and accommodation at NIAS;
- replacement funds of up to €3,800 per month for nominees employed at a Dutch university;
- an interdisciplinary workshop at the Lorentz Center with a total budget of €20,000 and full organisational support;
- a personal prize of €10,000.

Nominees must be put forward by leading figures from within the Dutch academic community.

FELLOWSHIPS

National Humanities Center

Description

National Humanities Center invites applications for its fellowships. A total of 40 residential fellowships for advanced study in the humanities are available during the academic year. Most of the centre's fellowships are unrestricted. However, several are designated for particular areas of research. These include one fellowship for a young woman in philosophy and fellowships for environmental studies, English literature, art history, Asian studies and theology. The centre seeks to provide at least half salary and also covers travel expenses to and from North Carolina for fellows and dependants. Applicants must hold doctorate or equivalent scholarly credentials. Applications from outside the US are welcomed.

CS/SEI WATTS S HUMPHREY AWARD

IEEE

Description:

The IEEE invites applications for the IEEE Computer Society/Software Engineering Institute Watts S Humphrey Award. This non-competitive annual award recognises software process achievement.

Award recipients receive an engraved commemorative plaque and make one or more presentations at appropriate practitioner and researcher community events.

Award recipients also produce an SEI Technical Report describing their accomplishments, experiences, and lessons learned. The SEI helps produce this report and pays the authors an honorarium of US$1,500 to partially offset the expense of preparing their presentation and report.

EARLY CAREER AWARD FOR PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT WITH SCIENCE

American Association for the Advancement of Science

Description:
The American Association for the Advancement of Science invites applications for its early career award for public engagement with science. This award recognises early career scientists and engineers who demonstrate excellence in their contribution to public engagement with science activities.

Nominees must be early career scientists or engineers in academia, government or industry who actively conduct research in any scientific discipline including social sciences and medicine. Groups or institutions will not be considered for this award. Early career is defined as an individual who has been in their current field for less than seven years. Postdoctoral students are eligible.

The winner will receive a monetary prize of US$5,000, complimentary registration to the AAAS annual meeting and reimbursement of reasonable hotel and travel expenses to attend the meeting.

POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada – Conseil de Recherches en Sciences Naturelles et en Génie du Canada

Description
The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada invites applications for its postdoctoral fellowships. These aim to secure a supply of Canadians with scientific and research skills for Canadian industry, government and universities. Applications are accepted within the following discipline categories:

- civil and mechanical engineering;
- chemical, biomedical and materials science engineering;
- electrical engineering;
- computing sciences;
- mathematical sciences;
- physics and astronomy;
- chemistry;
- Earth sciences;
- evolution and ecology;

- cellular and molecular biology;
- plant and animal biology;
- psychology.

Applicants must be Canadian citizens or permanent residents holding, or expecting to hold, a doctorate in one of the research fields supported by NSERC. All requirements for a doctoral degree must have generally been completed no more that two years before or 1 September of the year of award announcement. Qualified Aboriginal students are encouraged to apply.

Awards may be held at Canadian universities, provincial research institutions or other appropriate research laboratories; or universities and research centres abroad, provided that the applicant has received their doctorate from a Canadian university. However, fellows may not hold their fellowship at the same university where they received their doctorate nor can they work with their PhD supervisor. Fellows are encouraged to undertake research that involves collaboration with other Canadian organisations.

Fellowships are worth CA$40,000 per year for up to two years.

Closing date: 15 Oct 14
Deadline information: Applications due by 8pm EDT. This call is repeated once a year.

POSTDOCTORAL TRAINING FOR APPLICANTS LIVING OUTSIDE OF QUÉBEC

Québec Health Research Fund – Fonds de la Recherche en Santé du Québec

Description:
The Québec Health Research Fund (FRQS) invites applications for its postdoctoral training programme. This is aimed at Canadian and non-Canadian citizens who are not domiciled in Québec, and who wish to pursue their postdoctoral training in human health sciences research in the province. The purpose of the programme is to help PhD holders to enhance their training and broaden their field of interest. It is also aimed at encouraging these researchers to experience new scientific environments, to acquire new research methodologies and management and communication skills, and to supervise students.

Eligible applicants must have obtained their PhD no more than two years before 15 October 2013, and must pursue their full-time training at a host university different from the one which awarded the PhD.

Funding is worth CA$30,000 a year for two to three years.

Closing date: 15 Oct 14 (Forecast)

Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. This call is repeated once a year.

FREIGEIST FELLOWSHIPS

VolkswagenStiftung – Volkswagen Foundation

Description

The Volkswagen Stiftung invites application for its freigeist fellowships. These support young researchers wishing to develop an individual research profile early in their career. The funding provides grantees with a reliable five year timeline during which they are free to carry out highly innovative risk taking research located at the boundaries between established fields of research.

Applications are welcome in all areas and from all nationalities. Applicants must have obtained their doctorate no more than five years ago and be integrated with a university or an extra-mural research institution in Germany at the beginning of the fellowship. Candidates can not apply to continue their research at the institution where they obtained their doctorate.

Fellowships are available for five years and, depending on the field of research and experience of the candidate, are worth up to €1 million. A second funding period of three years worth €400,000 may be applied for at the end of the fourth year. Funding may be used for salaries, travel expenses and equipment. Fellows are expected to participate in teaching and academic self administration. 10 to 15 fellowships will be awarded per year.

Closing date: 15 Oct 14

COLGATE-PALMOLIVE POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP IN IN VITRO TOXICOLOGY

Society of Toxicology

Description:
The Society of Toxicology invites applications for the Colgate-Palmolive postdoctoral fellowship in in vitro toxicology. This enables postdoctoral trainees to develop alternatives to animal testing in toxicological research.
Applicants should be postdoctoral trainees who have a conferred doctoral degree and are employed by academic institutions, federal or national laboratories, or research institutes. Preference will be given to applicants in their first year of postdoctoral study. Membership of the society is required from both the applicant and their postdoctoral advisor.

The fellowship includes a stipend and a research grant of up to US$44,000 for a one-year period.

CREATIVE AND NOVEL IDEAS IN HIV RESEARCH (CNIHR)

International Aids Society

Description:
The International Aids Society invites proposals for creative and novel ideas in HIV research (CNIHR). The aim of this programme is to attract international and US-based early-stage investigators from outside the field of HIV to help address key scientific questions in HIV research, including emerging issues of long-term survival with HIV infection, prevention of HIV transmission and research towards a cure. Research topics could include any aspect of HIV or HIV-related research. Projects may not include prospective human interventional trials, although studies of animal models, stored samples from existing cohorts, small pathogenic studies or in vitro trials are permitted.

Junior investigators who have completed their first terminal research degree or medical residency within the last 10 years and who hold a faculty or equivalent position at an academic institution, or a comparable position in a not-for-profit organisation or research institution, are eligible to apply. Postdoctoral trainees who have completed their training and will have a faculty or comparable position prior to the deadline for full proposals may also apply. Applicants may not yet have been engaged in HIV research.

It is anticipated that 10 to 12 grants will be awarded under this call. Funding is worth up to US$150,000 in direct costs, plus applicable indirect costs, per year for one or two years.

Each grantee and their mentor will also receive support to attend conferences convened by the society during their award period.

Closing date: 16 Oct 14 (Forecast)
Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. Concept proposals due by 16 October 2013; invited full proposals due by 10 February 2014. This call is repeated once a year.

SYNGENTA FELLOWSHIP AWARD IN HUMAN HEALTH APPLICATIONS OF NEW TECHNOLOGIES

Society of Toxicology

Description:
The Society of Toxicology invites nominations for the Syngenta fellowship award in human health applications of new technologies. This supports mode-of-action research aimed at characterising dose-dependent effects of xenobiotics on mammalian systems in such a way that the causal sequence of key events underlying toxicity is elucidated. The work should permit a quantitative basis for extrapolation of the results from animal bioassays or animal models, either in-silico or in-vitro, to humans at relevant human doses.

To be eligible, the applicant must be at least a third-year graduate student or postgraduate trainee employed by academic institution, research institute, federal or national laboratory. Membership, or pending membership, of the society is required.

The award includes funds of US$15,000 plus travel support to both the society's annual meeting and the Syngenta site to present the research results.

Z/I IMAGING SCHOLARSHIP

American Society for Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing

Description:
The American Society for Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing invites applications for the Z/I imaging scholarship. This award is intended to facilitate graduate-level studies and career goals adjudged to address new and innovative uses of signal processing, image processing techniques, and the application of photogrammetry to real-world techniques within the Earth imaging industry. The award consists of a one-year scholarship of $2,000 and a certificate.

The award is restricted to members of ASPRS. It is intended for a student who is currently pursuing graduate level studies or who plans to enroll for graduate studies in a recognized college or university in the US or elsewhere.

OPEN WORLD RESEARCH INITIATIVE

Arts and Humanities Research Council

Description:
The Arts and Humanities Research Council invites expressions of interest for its open world research initiative. This supports multi-institutional and multidisciplinary collaborations that develop and present a cogent, positive and compelling vision for how language-led research draws on and enhances openness to other languages, cultures, literature and histories. The intention is to support projects that have a language discipline focus and involve a number of interconnected research strands. Projects should demonstrate the following characteristics:

- be driven by language-led research;
- set out research with an arts and humanities focus, drawing on capabilities from a number of languages;
- bring together expertise in different languages and from a range of arts and humanities disciplines
- connect to wider initiatives in order to make a sustained contribution to the health of modern languages;
- contribute to capacity building and sustainability of modern languages research.

Applicants must be collaborative partnerships lead by a UK higher education institution or accredited AHRC independent research organisation with an established track record of relevant research excellence. Applications should identify a principal investigator from the lead organisation, co-investigators for each research strand and research assistants. In addition, applicants must form domestic and international partnerships within and outside the academic sector.

The total budget of at least £20 million will fund at least five awards. Each project may be worth between £3m and £4m, with funding covering 80 per cent of full economic costs over a four-year period.

Closing date: 23 Oct 14

PHD SCHOLARSHIP

Alzheimer's Research UK

Description:
Alzheimer's Research UK invites applications for its PhD scholarships. The scheme supports a full three-year PhD programme. Applications must fall within ARUK's remit: research into causes, cures, preventions, diagnoses and treatments for Alzheimer's disease and related dementias.

The lead applicant and point of contact must be based in a UK academic or research institution, but the application can include researchers or institutions outside the UK.

Applications must be made by individual or joint supervisors, not students. The lead supervisor must have a contract with the institution covering the duration of the scholarship. If the lead supervisor does not hold a tenure or tenure-track appointment, the application must include a co-supervisor who does.

Scholarships last for three years and provide a stipend of £15,000 per year (£16,000 in London), full PhD tuition fees at home rate, and research and travel costs. These costs are usually up to £10,000 per year, but ARUK will consider requests for up to £15,000 for inherently costly research.

JUNIOR RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS

Kay Kendall Leukaemia Fund

Description
Kay Kendall Leukaemia Fund invites applications for its junior research fellowships. The objective of this programme is to support outstanding individuals wanting to pursue research into haematological malignancies. Up to three fellowships will be awarded. At least one fellowship will be awarded to scientific fellow with up to three years of experience who intends to work in the UK or abroad. In addition, at least one fellowship will be awarded to a clinician seeking funding for PhD in a UK centre. Applications will be considered on any aspect of the study of leukaemia interpreted in its broadest sense, including but not limited to:

- molecular biology and biochemistry;
- virology;
- immunology;
- cell biology;
- epidemiology;
- diagnostic and therapeutic strategies, including gene transfer.

Applicants may be of any nationality but should have a recognised higher degree. Fellowships are to be undertaken on a full-time basis in a recognised university, hospital or other equivalent institution. Fellowships generally cover a period of three years with the possibility of an extension for up to one year. Fellows will be remunerated at a level determined by the host institution, which level may not exceed the top of the lecturer grade. The fund will allocate up to £17,000 to contribute to the cost of laboratory consumables and a further £1,000 to cover the costs of travel to meetings.

POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Cystinosis Research Foundation

Description:
The Cystinosis Research Foundation invites applications for its postdoctoral fellowships. These aim to attract qualified, promising investigators to establish careers in cystinosis research.

First priority will be given to named postdoctoral trainees. However, investigators who are already studying cystinosis can apply for a fellowship position with the expectation of attracting a suitable postdoctoral fellow within a year. Predoctoral students, who are already studying cystinosis, will be considered if funding is available.

The fellow's stipend should be the usual amount for such a trainee at that institution. The award is worth up to US$75,000 per year for one to three years.

COMING SOON: DARWIN FELLOWSHIPS

Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs

Description
 The Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs will shortly be inviting applications for the Darwin fellowships. The following announcement is subject to change as further information will be released on 1 September 2014 when the call opens. The deadline has been confirmed as 27 October 2014. ***

These fellowships enable promising individuals from developing countries to come to the UK for a period of training or research. The programme gives scholars the opportunity to broaden their knowledge and experience in biodiversity, in order to assist their organisations, communities and countries in working towards the objectives of the UN biodiversity convention.

Applications should be made by the host organisation, which must be in the UK. Eligible candidates are those from developing countries who are involved in a recent or current Darwin initiative project or directly involved in the implementation of the Convention on Biological Diversity, the Nagoya Protocol on Access and Benefit Sharing, the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species or the International Treaty on Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture. Candidates must also be working in biodiversity or a related field.

There is no set funding amount. Fellowships are typically worth between £20,000 and £25,000 for a training period of 12 months.

SACKLER-CAIRD FELLOWSHIP

National Maritime Museum

Description
The National Maritime Museum invites applications for the Sackler-Caird fellowship. This aims to encourage research of significance and originality in any field of the museum's maritime subjects and collections. The fellowship strives to generate high-quality research in the museum's collections and enable a broad range of outcomes from academic research. Proposals for interdisciplinary studies which place research on the museum's collections in a broader context and those that will contribute to public-facing programmes will be prioritised. Successful applicants must be of postdoctoral of equivalent status and must be in post at a UK or overseas university.

The fellowship offers £30,000 per year for up to two years, and an extra £2,000 per year may be available for additional expenses such as conference travel and research at archives.

INTERNATIONAL SCHOLARSHIP AWARD

American Academy of Neurology

Description:
The American Academy of Neurology invites nominations for its international scholarship award. This provides eligible international candidates the opportunity to attend and participate in the AAN annual meeting.

Eligible candidates should be under 36 years of age and citizens or residents of a nation outside the US and Canada. They should have completed an approved neurology speciality training programme, and hold a fellowship or be a junior faculty member, or equivalent, in a neurology department in their country of residence. Candidates who have attended previous AAN annual meetings will be given preference.

Up to 13 scholarships are available. Recipients will receive up to a US$2,500 for travel, accommodation and meal expenses, while the fees for meeting registration, selected educational courses and certain scientific programmes will be waived.

Closing date: 30 Oct 14 (Forecast)
Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. Applicants should submit an abstract through the official AAN abstract submission site, while a copy must be included in the award application. This call is repeated once a year.

INTERMEDIATE FELLOWSHIPS IN PUBLIC HEALTH AND TROPICAL MEDICINE

Wellcome Trust

Description:
The Wellcome Trust invites applications for its intermediate fellowships in public health and tropical medicine. These enable mid-career researchers from low- and middle-income countries to establish an independent research programme.

Research projects must be in public health or tropical medicine, aimed at understanding and controlling human and animal diseases of local, national or global health importance. This can include laboratory-based molecular analysis of field or clinical samples, but projects focused solely on in vitro or animal model studies will not normally be considered under this scheme.

Applicants must be nationals or legal residents of a low- and middle-income country and should be graduates in a subject relevant to public health or tropical medicines with a PhD, or medical graduates with a higher qualification equivalent to membership of the UK Royal Colleges of Physicians or recognised as specialists within a relevant research area. Three to six years' postdoctoral or research experience is required. Applicants who do not have a PhD but who are educated to first degree or master's level and have extensive research experience may be considered.

Fellows must be based at an eligible sponsoring institution that will administer the fellowship, and must have a sponsor who holds an established post for the duration of the award and who can guarantee that space and facilities will be available.

Fellowships last for up to five years and include basic salary, research expenses, training costs, funding allowance, travel to meetings and public engagement costs. Research-dedicated costs should not exceed £60,000 per year. Course fees and overseas allowances may also be considered.

Closing date: 31 Oct 14
Deadline information: Preliminary applications due by 5pm, 31 October 2014; invited full applications due by 5pm, 26 January 2015. This call is repeated 2 times a year.
Posted date: 20 Jun 14
Award type: Directed grants for individual investigators, Travel to conferences, meetings etc., Travel for research purposes, Equipment and materials, Networking/collaboration, Publish, edit,

TRAINING FELLOWSHIPS IN PUBLIC HEALTH AND TROPICAL MEDICINE

Wellcome Trust

Description:
The Wellcome Trust invites applications for its training fellowships in public health and tropical medicine. These enable early-career researchers from low and middle income countries to gain research experience and high-quality research training in public health and tropical medicine. Research must be in the area of public health or tropical medicine, aimed at understanding and controlling human and animal diseases of local, national or global health importance. This can include laboratory-based molecular analysis of field or clinical samples, but projects focused solely on in vitro or animal model studies will not normally be considered.

Applicants must be nationals or legal residents of a low- and middle-income country and should be either graduates in a subject relevant to public health or tropical medicine with a PhD and no more than three years' postdoctoral experience, or medical graduates with a higher qualification equivalent to membership of the UK Royal Colleges of Physicians and some initial research experience. Applicants may also apply if they do not have a PhD but have a clinical, basic or master's degree and some initial research experience, with the expectation that they will register for a PhD.

Fellows must be based at an eligible sponsoring institution that will administer the fellowship, and must have an appropriate sponsor who holds an established post for the duration of the award. The sponsor must be able to guarantee that space and facilities will be available.

Fellowships are normally for three years, but may be for up to four years for those who wish to undertake a relevant master's training or diploma course. Support includes a salary, research expenses, training costs, a funding allowance, funding to attend scientific meetings and provision for public engagement costs. The trust may also provide project costs directly incurred by the overseas institution. Research-dedicated costs should not exceed £30,000 per year.

Closing date: 31 Oct 14

AWARD IN POLYMER CHEMISTRY

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for its award in polymer chemistry. The purpose of this award is to recognise outstanding fundamental contributions and achievements in the field of polymer chemistry. This award is specifically intended to acknowledge the impact in basic science of a researcher's body of work in the broad field of polymer chemistry.

The nominees for this award are expected to have demonstrated pioneering research accomplishments in synthetic methods of unique polymeric materials or achieved profound discoveries in polymer physical chemistry leading to recognised advancements in the understanding of complex macro-molecular behaviour.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$1,000 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award will be presented will be reimbursed.

AWARD IN SEPARATIONS SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for its award in separations science and technology. The purpose of this award is to recognise the development of novel applications with major impacts or the practical implementations of modern advancements in the field of separation science and technology. The scope of the award is broad, covering all fields where separation science and technology is practised, including biology, chemistry, engineering, geology and medicine.

The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, or educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award will be presented will be reimbursed. The recipient will deliver a lecture at the annual Division of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry Separations Science and Technology symposium.

AWARD IN THE CHEMISTRY OF MATERIALS

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for its award in the chemistry of materials. The purpose of this award is to recognise and encourage creative work in the chemistry of materials. Particular emphasis will be placed on research that relates to materials of actual or potential technological importance, where a fundamental understanding of the chemistry associated with materials preparation, processing or use is critical.
Because much of the impact of research depends upon the extension of the work of others, some consideration should be given to the nominee's success as a mentor and colleague. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, or educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award is presented will be reimbursed.

EARLE B BARNES AWARD FOR LEADERSHIP IN CHEMICAL RESEARCH MANAGEMENT

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for the Earle B Barnes award for leadership in chemical research management. This award recognises individuals who have demonstrated outstanding leadership and creativity in promoting the sciences of chemistry and chemical engineering in research management. This leadership and creativity must have been demonstrated by a record of successful research projects and by a strong motivation of the researchers on those projects.

Nominees should be industrial or government employees who are responsible for making decisions on R&D project selection, resource allocation, budgets, staffing or other similar subjects. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, or educational background.

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for the Herbert C Brown Award for creative research in synthetic methods. The purpose of this award is to recognise and encourage outstanding and creative contributions to research in synthetic methods. The synthetic method that is the basis for the award may be related to any area of chemistry.

Nominees must have accomplished outstanding and creative research that involved the discovery and development of novel and useful methods for chemical synthesis. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, or educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award is presented will be reimbursed.

Closing date: 01 Nov 14 (Forecast)
Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. This call is repeated once a year.

ARTHUR C COPE AWARD

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for the Arthur C Cope award. This award serves to recognise outstanding achievements in the field of organic chemistry.

The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities or educational background.

An unrestricted grant-in-aid of US$150,000 for research in organic chemistry under the direction of the recipient will be made to any university or nonprofit institution selected by the recipient. A recipient may choose to assign the Arthur C. Cope Fund Grant to an institution for use by others for research or education in organic chemistry. The award also includes a cash prize of US$25,000 and reimbursement of up to US$2,500 for expenses incurred to attend the spring national meeting at which the award will be presented.

ARTHUR C COPE SCHOLAR AWARDS

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites applications for the Arthur C Cope Scholar Awards. The purpose of this award is to recognise and encourage excellence in organic chemistry. Ten Arthur C Cope Scholars will be named annually: two who have less than 10 years of experience, four who have between 10 and 25 years of experience, and four who have over 25 years of experience since receiving their terminal degree. No individual may receive a second Arthur C Cope Scholar Award. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities or educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of of US$5,000 and a US$40,000 unrestricted research grant to be assigned by the recipient to any university or nonprofit institution. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the fall national meeting will be reimbursed.

The recipient may also be invited to make a presentation at an ACS regional meeting during the year after the Cope Award and Cope Scholar Award Symposium. In support of this presentation, the ACS Division of Organic Chemistry will provide a US$500 honorarium and reasonable travel expenses to the regional meeting.

ELIAS J COREY AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTION IN ORGANIC SYNTHESIS BY A YOUNG INVESTIGATOR

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for the Elias J Corey award for outstanding original contribution in organic synthesis by a young investigator. This recognises original and insightful work by an investigator under 40 years of age, that has had significant impact on the field of synthetic organic chemistry.

Nominees must have accomplished research that is of exceptional merit and adds value to the field, such as the contribution of a novel and highly useful reagent, reaction, or catalytic process that solves a synthetic problem of considerable importance. Special consideration will be given to the application of such novel chemistry toward the synthesis of natural products and organic molecules of medicinal importance, and to the discovery of novel reactions or processes with broad utility. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities or educational background.
The award includes US$5,000 and US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award will be presented.

FRANK H FIELD AND JOE L FRANKLIN AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT IN MASS SPECTROMETRY

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites nominations for the Frank H Field and Joe L Franklin award for outstanding achievement in mass spectrometry. The purpose of this award is to recognise outstanding achievement in the development or application of mass spectrometry. In odd-numbered years, the award is presented for advances in techniques or fundamental processes in mass spectrometry and in even-numbered years for development of the applications of mass spectrometry.

The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, or educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award is presented will be reimbursed.

EB HERSHBERG AWARD FOR IMPORTANT DISCOVERIES IN MEDICINALLY ACTIVE SUBSTANCES

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society invites applications for the EB Hershberg award for important discoveries in medicinally active substances. The purpose of this award is to recognise and encourage outstanding discoveries in the chemistry of medicinally active substances. The discovery for which the award is given should have been made during the last two decades.

The award consists of US$3,000 and a certificate. Up to US$1,000 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award will be presented will be reimbursed.

The award shall be granted for outstanding discoveries or developments in the chemistry of medicinally active substances, without regard to age or nationality of the recipient.

IPATIEFF PRIZE

American Chemical Society

Description:
American Chemical Society invites nominations for the Ipatieff prize. This recognises outstanding chemical experimental work in the field of catalysis or high pressure, carried out by researchers of any nationality and not over 40 years of age. The award may be made for investigations carried out in any country, without nationality considerations. Preference will be given to American chemists.

The award will consist of the income from a trust fund and a certificate. The financial value of the prize will be approximately US$5,000 and it will be awarded every three years. Travel expenses for the conferment of the award will also be reimbursed.

FELLOWSHIPS

Shuttleworth Foundation

Description

The Shuttleworth Foundation invites applications for its fellowships. Fellowships are aimed at those who have a plan for social change through innovation in the areas of education and technology, and for those who have a clear vision of a changed world and of their contribution to bringing about this change. This fellowship offers the freedom and financial ability to bring about social change through innovation, as well as an enabling support structure and an existing network of social change agents. The fellowship is not an academic fellowship aimed at research, although research is not excluded. Preference will be given to action based research or practical implementations of innovative ideas.

The fellowship is not limited to any specific geographic location but applicants must be fluent in English. Fellowship applicants must have attained the age of majority by the date of application.

Fellowships are for one year, with the possibility of a renewal. The foundation will provide technological, financial and legal support. Grants consist of the equivalent of a year's salary, a contribution towards expenses and a travel allowance.

Closing date: 01 Nov 14

Deadline information: Deadlines on: 1 November 2014, 1 May 2015, and repeated annually.

FELLOWSHIPS

Harvard University

Description
Harvard University's Loeb Classical Library Foundation invites applications for its fellowships. These enable qualified scholars to undertake research, publications and other projects in the area of classical studies. Grants may be used for publication of research, enhancement of sabbaticals, travel to libraries or collections, dramatic productions, excavation expenses or cost of research materials. Applicants must have faculty or faculty emeritus status at a college or university at the time of application and during the entire time covered by the grant.
Grants usually range from US$1,000 to US$35,000 and are available for one academic year.

Closing date: 01 Nov 14 (Forecast)

FREDERIC STANLEY KIPPING AWARD IN SILICON CHEMISTRY

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society, supported by Dow Corning Company, invites applications for the Frederic Stanley Kipping award in silicon chemistry. The purpose of this award is to recognise distinguished contributions to the field of silicon chemistry and, by such example, to stimulate the creativity of others.

Nominees must have made distinguished contributions in the field of silicon chemistry during the 10 years preceding the current nomination. The measure of this achievement should focus primarily on the nominee's significant publications in the field of silicon chemistry, silicon-based material sciences or the related field of organometallic chemistry, particularly embracing the elements of Group IV. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities or educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award is presented will be reimbursed.

EV MURPHREE AWARD IN INDUSTRIAL AND ENGINEERING CHEMISTRY

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society, supported by ExxonMobil Research and Engineering Company, invites nominations for the EV Murphree award in industrial and engineering chemistry. The purpose of this award is to stimulate fundamental research in industrial and engineering chemistry, the development of chemical engineering principles and their application to industrial processes.

Nominees must have accomplished outstanding research of a theoretical or experimental nature in the fields of industrial chemistry or chemical engineering. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, and educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$1,000 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award is presented will be reimbursed.

NOBEL LAUREATE SIGNATURE AWARD FOR GRADUATE EDUCATION IN CHEMISTRY

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society, supported by Avantor Performance Materials, invites nominations for the Nobel laureate signature award for graduate education in chemistry. The purpose of this award is to recognise an outstanding graduate student and her or his preceptor or preceptors, in the field of chemistry, as broadly defined.

The graduate student nominee must have completed a PhD dissertation in chemistry within the 12-month period before the deadline for receipt of nominations. The award will recognise only work done while the nominee was a graduate student. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, and educational background. All documents must be submitted in English.

The graduate student and the preceptor will receive US$3,000 each. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award is presented will be reimbursed

AWARD FOR AFFORDABLE GREEN CHEMISTRY

American Chemical Society

Description:
The American Chemical Society, supported by Dow Chemical Company, invites nominations for its award for affordable green chemistry. The purpose of this award is to recognise outstanding scientific discoveries that lay the foundation for environmentally friendly products or manufacturing processes at a cost comparable to or less than that of current technologies, or discoveries that deliver new applications with compelling cost/benefit profiles, and to identify and recognise discovery of new eco-friendly chemistries with the potential to enable products or manufacturing processes that are less expensive than existing alternatives.
Nominee eligibility is neither contingent on the timeframe in which the technology was developed, nor on demonstrated commercial success. Discoveries must have significant commercial potential, however, to be considered for award. The award will be granted regardless of race, gender, age, religion, ethnicity, nationality, sexual orientation, gender expression, gender identity, presence of disabilities, and educational background.

The award includes a cash prize of US$5,000. Up to US$2,500 for travel expenses to the meeting at which the award will be presented will be reimbursed.

ERNEST HEMINGWAY RESEARCH GRANTS

National Archives and Records Administration

Description:
The National Archives and Records Administration invites applications for the Ernest Hemingway research grants. The JFK Library Foundation provides funds for scholars and students to help defray living, travel, and related costs incurred while doing research in the Ernest Hemingway collection. Grant applications are evaluated on the basis of expected utilisation of the Hemingway collection, the degree to which they address research needs in Hemingway and related studies, and the qualifications of applicants.

Preference is given to dissertation research by PhD candidates working in newly opened or relatively unused portions of the collection, but all proposals will be considered.

Grants range from US$200 to US$1,000.

SOCIAL SCIENCE FELLOWSHIPS

Institute for Advanced Study

Description:
The School of Social Science at the Institute for Advanced Study invites applications for its fellowships. Visiting fellows are expected to pursue only their own research, while the school organises a weekly seminar at which members as well as invited guests present their ongoing work.

The school welcomes applications in economics, political science, law, psychology, sociology and anthropology. It encourages social scientific work with a historical and humanistic bent and also considers applications in history, philosophy, literary criticism, literature and linguistics.

The thematic focus for the academic year of 2014-15 is egalitarianisms. This focus is neither an exclusive nor excluding theme. Applications are strongly encouraged from scholars across the social sciences, whether or not their research corresponds to the theme.

Applicants must hold a completed doctorate or equivalent by the application deadline. The school attempts to provide half of the current academic base salary for all fellows, up to a maximum of US$65,000 for one full academic year.

ST LOUIS MERCANTILE LIBRARY PRIZE IN AMERICAN BIBLIOGRAPHY

Bibliographical Society of America

Description:
The Bibliographical Society of America, with funds from the St Louis Mercantile Library at the University of Missouri, invites nominations for its prize in American bibliography. This recognises a study that concentrates on some aspect of American history and culture in territories that now comprise the US, or on literature by American authors, or literature intended for publication in territories that now comprise the US. Nominated studies should involve research in bibliography and printing history broadly conceived, and focus on the book as historical evidence for studying topics such as the history of book production, publication, distribution, collecting or reading.

Eligible work includes published books or articles, master's theses or doctoral dissertations defended and approved, or research results distributed in another manner. The work must have been published between 2011 and 2013.

Scholars of any nationality and of academic affiliation, degree or rank are eligible, while nominations of young and junior scholars are encouraged. Self-nominations are allowed.

The prize includes a cash award of US$2,000 and a year's membership of the society.

GROUP STUDY VISITS

Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst – German Academic Exchange Service

Description:
The German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) invites applications for its group study visits to Germany. These aim to provide students with subject related knowledge, facilitate meetings with German students, academics and researchers and give the students a greater understanding of and insight into economic, political and cultural life in Germany.

Depending on the country of origin the group can either independently organise the trip or apply to DAAD for an already organised trip. Each group must me headed by a university teacher. Study visits can last between seven and 12 days. For self organised trips, the grant is €50 per student per day. For DAAD organised trips, the accommodation is paid for and a lump sum of €9 per student per day for midday and evening meals is given. Health and accident insurance is included in both types of study visits.

RISING STAR TRANSLATIONAL RESEARCH AWARDS

International Mental Health Research Organization

Description:
The International Mental Health Research Organization invites nominations for its rising star translational research awards. These support leaders of independent research programmes to carry out research toward novel therapies for psychiatric illness. The awards aim to advance the translation of scientific knowledge of underlying disease mechanisms in bipolar disorder, schizophrenia, and major depression toward benefits to patients and the healthcare system. Specifically, the programme supports translational research on innovative targets, with the potential to advance discovery of therapeutic approaches in the near term. The emphasis will be on approaches that provide a viable path toward renormalising or compensating for novel biological alterations or those that have already been discovered.

Candidates should be leaders of an independent research programme and have a track record in a scientific field that can be applied to the study of the underlying mechanisms of schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, or major depression. Both early career and established investigators are eligible.

Up to two awards, worth US$150,000 each, are available.

INTERNATIONAL AWARDS

Ashden Trust

Description:
The Ashden Trust invites applications for its international awards for sustainable energy. These recognise organisations that have excelled in providing sustainable energy at a local level. Projects should use renewable energy or energy efficiency measures to improve people's social and economic prospects, and at the same time tackle climate change and other environmental threats. Award-winning work is likely to provide benefits in one or more of the following areas:

- energy for agriculture;
- avoided deforestation in rainforests;
- finance organisations and schemes;
- increasing energy access;
- low energy buildings
- humanitarian;
- sustainable energy for providing water.

Organisations working in rural and urban communities in developing economies, as well as businesses, non-governmental organisations, social enterprises and government organisations are eligible to apply. The work must be delivered in areas that do not have developed world standards of living. These can be rural or urban programmes or enterprises, and in Africa, Central and South America or Asia.

For the 2014 awards, there will be up to five international award winners. One will win the gold award, worth £40,000, while the remaining winners will each receive £20,000.

COMING SOON: CANADA GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS FOR DIRECT APPLICANTS – JOSEPH-ARMAND BOMBARDIER DOCTORAL SCHOLARSHIPS AND SSHRC DOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada – Conseil de Recherches en Sciences Humaines

Description:
The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada will shortly be inviting applications for its Canada graduate scholarships for direct applicants – Joseph-Armand Bombardier doctoral scholarships and SSHRC doctoral fellowships. The expected deadline for this call is 6 November 2014. The information below refers to the previous application round. ***

These scholarships allow doctoral students to develop research skills and undergo training in the social sciences and humanities.

Each applicant must be a citizen or permanent resident of Canada, applying for support to pursue a first PhD or equivalent in the social science or humanities. They must not have already received a scholarship or fellowship from SSHRC, NSERC or CIHR, or be applying in the same year to these funds.

Direct applicants to SSHRC must fall under one of the following categories:

- registered in a degree programme in autumn 2014 at a Canadian university without a quota;
- registered in a degree programme in autumn 2014 at a university outside Canada;
- registered in a degree programme in autumn 2014 at a university, but intend to undertake doctoral studies.

The Joseph-Armand Bombardier doctoral scholarships are worth CA$35,000 annually over 36 months, while the SSHRC doctoral fellowships are worth CA$20,000 annually for 12, 24, 36 or 48 months.

Applicants eligible for both awards will be automatically considered for both.

FACULTY FOR THE FUTURE FELLOWSHIPS

Schlumberger Foundation

Description:
The Schlumberger Foundation invites applications for its faculty for the future fellowships. These enable women from developing and emerging economies to pursue PhD or postdoctoral studies in the physical sciences, engineering and technology at leading universities abroad. Fellows are expected to return to their home countries on completion of the fellowship in order to continue their academic careers, further their research, teach, and act as role models for other young women.
Female citizens of developing countries and emerging economies who are enrolled in, admitted to or have applied to a university or research institute abroad are eligible to apply.

Applicants should have an excellent academic record and be able to demonstrate active participation in faculty life and outreach programmes to encourage young women into the sciences.
Fellowships cover tuition and university fees, accommodation and subsistence, and travel expenses, and are worth up to US$40,000 per year for postdoctoral study and up to US$50,000 per year for PhD study. Fellowships may be renewed subject to satisfactory review.

Closing date: 08 Nov 14 (Forecast)

Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. New applications are accepted between 9 September and 15 November 2013; renewal applications between 9 September and 8 November 2013. This call is repeated once a year.

IADR PROSTHODONTICS GROUP STUDENT RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP

International Association for Dental Research

Description:
The International Association for Dental Research's prosthodontics group and VITA Zahnfabrik invite applications for their student research fellowship. This encourages dental students, residents and graduate students to consider careers in oral health research related to the topic of prosthodontics. Students, residents or graduate students carrying out original research in which they are the primary investigator are eligible to apply. To be eligible, applicants cannot have been the primary author of more than three articles published in refereed scientific journals. Students should also be sponsored by a faculty member who is a member of the IADR's prosthodontics group.

The fellowship consists of a cash prize worth US$3,000 with additional travel funds available worth up to US$1,500 to support direct costs for the research and travel and accommodations to present at an annual IADR general session and exhibition.

YOUNG INVESTIGATOR AWARDS

Prostate Cancer Foundation

Description:
The Prostate Cancer Foundation invites applications for its young investigator awards. These support the development of a cohort of human capital in prostate cancer research. Priority is given to translational research proposals with the potential to deliver near-term benefit to patients, although highly innovative basic science programmes will also be considered. Mentorship is required for every young investigator.

Applicants should be within six years following completion of a professional degree or clinical training, and may hold the title of senior postdoctoral fellow, instructor, research associate, assistant professor or equivalent. Successful applicants should be working in a research environment capable of supporting transformational prostate cancer research. Access to and interaction with a clinical environment and translational prostate cancer physician-scientists is highly desirable. Applications are encouraged from early-career basic scientists, medical oncologists, urologists, radiologists, radiation oncologists, public health experts and professionals from other medical research disciplines, while a special consideration will be given to research molecular pathologists and bioinformaticians.

Each award provides US$75,000 per year over a three-year period. Equal in-kind support will be requested in the form of dedicated space, equipment, institutional overhead, core institutional resources or similar.

HUNTINGTON FELLOWSHIPS

Huntington Library

Description:
The Huntington Library invites applications for its Huntington fellowships. These enable doctorate candidates or PhD-level scholars to undertake research fellowships at the Huntington Library. The majority of the fellowships will be awarded to scholars working in the general holdings of the library, although a number of specialised fellowships are available, including:

- Francis Bacon Foundation fellowships in Renaissance England;
- Reese fellowship in American bibliography and the history of the book in the Americas;
- Trent R Dames civil engineering history fellowship;
- Christopher Isherwood Foundation fellowship;
- the Francis J Weber research fellowship in Roman Catholic history;
- Molina fellowships in the history of medicine and allied sciences.

To be eligible, candidates must hold a PhD or equivalent qualification, or be a doctoral candidate at the dissertation stage. Recipients of all fellowships are expected to be in continuous residence at The Huntington for the one to five month tenure of the fellowship. Awards are worth US$3,000 per month.

NOVAK AWARD

Acton Institute for the Study of Religion and Liberty

Description:
The Acton Institute for the Study of Religion and Liberty invites nominations for the Novak award. This rewards new outstanding scholarly research into the relationship between religion, economic freedom, and the free and virtuous society. The award recognises those scholars early in their academic career who demonstrate outstanding intellectual merit in advancing the understanding of theology's connection to human dignity, the importance of the rule of law, limited government, religious liberty and freedom in economic life.

Scholars who have received a doctorate from an accredited programme in the previous five calendar years and current doctoral candidates in the process of completing their dissertations are eligible. Nominees must be studying theology, religion, economics, philosophy, business or a related field. Professors, university faculty members and other scholars may nominate qualified individuals for the award.

A cash prize of US$10,000 as well as travel expenses to the Calihan lecture will be granted.

DISTINGUISHED INVESTIGATOR AWARDS

American Foundation for Suicide Prevention

Description:
The American Foundation for Suicide Prevention invites applications for its distinguished investigator grants. These enable distinguished investigators to conduct research on suicide.

Studies should increase the understanding of the causes of suicide and factors related to suicide risk, or test treatments and other interventions designed to prevent suicide. Priority is given to projects on anxiety disorders or alcohol and other substance use disorders, which may be studied alone or in combination with other disorders.

Applicants should have an academic rank of associate or full professor and an established record of research and publication in the area of suicide. Non-profit institutions and organisations throughout the world are eligible.

Each award is worth up to US$50,000 per year for a maximum period of two years. The grantee institution should provide the required physical facilities and administrative services.

RESEARCH COLLOQUIUM FOR JUNIOR INVESTIGATORS

American Psychiatric Association

Description:
The American Psychiatric Association, in conjunction with the American Psychiatric Institute for Research and Education, invites nominations for its research colloquium for junior investigators. The purpose of the colloquium is to provide guidance, mentorship and encouragement to young investigators in the early phases of their training. Junior investigators will have an opportunity to obtain feedback about their past, present, and future research interests from mentors who are leaders in their field in a small group setting as well as obtaining general information about research career development and grantsmanship. This year, an all-day workshop for junior psychiatric investigators will focus on the following three areas:

- substance abuse from neurobiology to epidemiology and treatment;
- mood and anxiety disorders from neurobiology to epidemiology and treatment;
- psychotic disorders from neurobiology to epidemiology and treatment.

Psychiatrists who are senior residents, fellows, or junior faculty, and who have an interest and potential in developing research careers in the areas of research listed above are eligible. Participants should hold a medical degree or be a member of the APA or be eligible to become a member of the APA. Those with individual federal research awards are not eligible. A $1,000 stipend will be provided to partially defray travel expenses.

FRANK M CHAPMAN FELLOWSHIPS

American Museum of Natural History

Description:
The American Museum of Natural History invites applications for the Frank M Chapman fellowships. These one- or two-year fellowships are awarded for research in avian systematics, evolution and biogeography. Research must be performed whilst in residence at the American Museum of Natural History. The grants include a stipend and a research budget.

Fellowships are usually awarded to recent recipients of a doctoral degree in avian systematics. However, awards are sometimes made to senior researchers on sabbatical leave from their home institution. Applicants must have prior discussions with one or more members of the Ornithology Department concerning the research project.

Closing date: 15 Nov 14 (Forecast)
Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. This call is repeated once a year.

POSTDOCTORAL RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP

American Museum of Natural History

Description:
The American Museum of Natural History invites applications for its postdoctoral research fellowship. This provides training to postdoctoral investigators and established scientists to carry out a specific project within a limited time period. Postdoctoral fellows may conduct research in any area of the AMNH, with special funding options available for those focusing on North American fauna and marine biology. The programme is designed to advance the training of the participant by having them pursue a project in association with museum professionals in a museum setting. Appointments are typically made for up to two years. Limited relocation, research and publication support is provided.

CLAUDE AKE VISITING CHAIR

Nordiska Afrikainstitutet - Nordic Africa Institute

Description:
The Nordic Africa Institute, in partnership with the Department of Peace and Conflict Research at Uppsala University, invites nominations for the Claude Ake visiting chair. This is open to prominent social scientists working at African universities who combine a profound commitment to scholarship with a strong advocacy for social justice. Applicants should be working in areas related to war, peace, conflict resolution, human rights, democracy and development on the African continent. The successful candidate will be offered a conducive environment to pursue his or her own research and will have the opportunity to lecture, hold seminars and contribute to ongoing research activities within the department and elsewhere.

For 2014, applications are invited for two different positions:

- one visiting chair for a senior professor, in line with previous holders of the chair, who is well established and internationally recognised in his or her field;
- one visiting fellowship for a junior faculty, who holds a PhD degree in a relevant field, and who has showed promising results.

Social science departments, research institutions and institutes in Africa and elsewhere may submit nominations. The nomination of female candidates is particularly encouraged.

The chair is tenable for up to six months. The awardee is entitled to a tax-free stipend or scholarship. For full professors, this is currently set at SEK30,000 per month. In addition, travel costs and accommodation for the holder and accompanying spouse or significant other are covered by the award.

PREPARATORY CLINICAL RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP

Alzheimer's Research UK

Description:
Alzheimer's Research UK invites applications for its preparatory clinical research fellowship. This supports clinicians at various stages of training who are planning a career in academic medicine. The fellowships last for one year, during which fellows are expected to acquire the research skills and experience to apply for full clinical fellowships.

Old-age and general psychiatrists, neurologists, clinical psychologists and similar specialists are eligible to apply. The lead applicant and point of contact must be based in a UK academic or research institution. The application can include researchers or institutions outside the UK. Prospective fellows must have secured a supervisor and at least one supervisor must be clinically qualified with an honorary clinical contract. The lead supervisor must have a contract with the host institution. Applications must be made by the fellow, not the supervisors.

Funding covers salary at specialty registrar level, plus a contribution towards research and travel costs of normally up to £10,000. ARUK will consider requests for up to £15,000 for inherently costly research.

THESIGER-OMAN FELLOWSHIPS

Royal Geographical Society (with the Institute of British Geographers)

Description:
The Royal Geographical Society invites applications for the Thesiger-Oman fellowships. These support research into either the physical geography or the human dimension of arid and semi-arid environments across the world, with a priority for research in the Middle East. The main objective of the research must be to advance geographical knowledge of arid environments. The project should include fieldwork. Applicants must have held a doctorate for at least three years and have a proven research record beyond their PhD. Applicants must be affiliated to a higher education institution, which can be anywhere in the world. Individuals or groups can apply, but the application should be submitted by the principal investigator.

Each fellowship is worth up to £8,000. Additional funding of £2,000 may be made available if the applicant is able to take along a first-year geography undergraduate into the field, to enable them to gain experience as a fieldwork apprentice.

Closing date: 23 Nov 14
Deadline information: This call is repeated once a year.

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S INTERNATIONAL AWARD FOR CANADIAN STUDIES

International Council for Canadian Studies – Conseil International d'Études Canadiennes

Description:
The International Council for Canadian Studies invites applications for the Governor General's award for Canadian studies. This recognises a scholar who has made an outstanding contribution to the development of Canadian studies internationally.

The prize is awarded in odd years to an individual who has had a Canadian studies career in Canada and in even years for those who have had a Canadian studies career outside Canada. Odd or even years refers to the year of application, so 2011 for the 2012 award would count as an odd year.

There are no restrictions on nationality of nominees, but posthumous or self-nominations are not accepted.

HOUBLON-NORMAN AND GEORGE FELLOWSHIPS

Bank of England

Description:
The Bank of England invites applications for the Houblon-Norman and George fellowships. These are awarded to promote research into and disseminate knowledge and understanding of the working, interaction and function of financial business institutions in Great Britain and elsewhere, and the economic conditions affecting them.

Applicants are invited to engage in full-time research on an economic or financial topic of their choice, preferably one that could be studied with particular advantage at the Bank of England. The trustees will pay particular regard to the relevance of the research to current problems in economics and finance.

Senior fellowships will be awarded to distinguished research workers who have established a reputation in their field. Applicants for senior fellowships may be of any nationality. Fellowships are also available to younger postdoctoral or equivalent researchers. For these fellowships, preference will be shown to British and other EU nationals.

Fellowships are tenable at the Bank of England and last between one month and one year. Successful candidates will be provided with office accommodation and secretarial and other necessary support services. A further allowance may be made to cover travelling expenses or other costs incidental to the work. The total amount distributed in any one year rarely exceeds £120,000.

RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS

University of New South Wales

Description:
The University of New South Wales' School of Taxation & Business Law invites applications for its research fellowships. These support international academics and professionals keen to further their research in the field of taxation, business law and related disciplines. Fellows normally spend four weeks working at the school on a mutually agreed area of research. During their stay, fellows are involved in the following activities:

- producing at least one research paper on taxation or business law, in collaboration with school's academics, to be published in a refereed journal;
- conducting a taxation and business law research seminar for interested members of the broader research community in the field;
- participating in taxation and business law collegial activities.

Fellowships are open to overseas academics or practitioners in the field of taxation, business law and related disciplines.
Fellowships are worth up to AU$6,000. The school will provide office space and computer equipment at the campus in Sydney.

HAROLD GULLIKSEN PSYCHOMETRIC RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

Educational Testing Service

Description:
The Educational Testing Service invites applications under the Harold Gulliksen psychometric research fellowship programme. The goal of this programme is to increase the number of well-trained scientists in educational measurement, psychometrics, and statistics. During the academic year, fellows will study at their universities and participate in a research project that correlates with research currently underway at ETS. During the summer, fellows will be invited to participate in the ETS summer programme in research for graduate students, working under the guidance of an ETS researcher in Princeton.

ETS will provide funding to the fellow's university to pay each fellow a stipend of US$19,000 for the academic year. The university also will receive an educational allowance of US$8,000 to defray tuition, fees and work study programme commitments. The university may request a small grant for the purchase of equipment or software, if needed to facilitate work on the fellow's research project. In conjunction with participation in the summer program in research for graduate students, fellows will receive a stipend of US$6,000 for the two-month period and a relocation and housing allowance of US$3,000.

At the time of application, candidates must be enrolled in a doctoral program and have completed all the coursework toward the PhD and be at the dissertation stage of the program.

NORMAN E BORLAUG LEADERSHIP ENHANCEMENT IN AGRICULTURE PROGRAMME

Agency for International Development (USAID)

Description:
The University of California at Davis, in collaboration with the Agency for International Development, invites applications for the Norman E Borlaug leadership enhancement in agriculture programme. This programme aims to enhance the quality of thesis research of graduate students from sub-Saharan Africa who show strong promise as leaders in the field of agriculture and related disciplines. The programme will support research on all topics related to the US government's global hunger and food security initiative, Feed the Future, although emphasis will be placed on work of relevance to the national development of the student's home country. Internships are tenable for up to 12 months and may be held at a US graduate-level university, a Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research centre, or a combination of appropriate institutions. Students will establish an agreement with the university faculty member or CGIAR scientist with whom they intend to collaborate during this period.

Citizens of USAID-assisted countries in sub-Saharan Africa, who are currently enrolled as a master's or PhD student at a US or sub-Saharan university, may apply. Applicants must have completed at least one year of graduate-level coursework in the programme in which they are enrolled and be fluent in reading, writing and speaking English.

Funding supports a variety of research needs, such as travel to the research site, research support at the host institute and US faculty member travel to the research site for mentoring purposes. Funds may not be used for tuition fees or salaries. Grants are worth a maximum of US$20,000.

GRAWEMEYER AWARD IN RELIGION

University of Louisville

Description:
The University of Louisville invites nominations for the Grawemeyer award in religion. This aims to honour and publicise creative and constructive insights into the relationship between human beings and the divine, and ways in which this relationship may inspire or empower human beings to attain wholeness, integrity or meaning, either individually or in community. A wide variety of concerns and issues will be considered, while preference will be given to ideas that:

- assist people, by their clarity and power, to better understand the relationship between divine reality and human spiritual striving;
- lead to a recognition and understanding of religious experience;
- foster greater understanding and cooperation among adherents of diverse religious traditions and views;
- stimulate new insights into the relationship between religious awareness and other forms of human knowledge;
- reflect significant breakthroughs in our understanding of divine-human relationships, particularly in the context of the post modern world.

Nominated works must have be presented or published in 2008 or subsequently. Nominations should be made by religious organisations, academic associations, religious leaders and scholars, presidents of universities or schools of religion, and publishers or editors of scholarly journals. Self-nominations will not be considered.

The award includes a cash prize of US$100,000.

Closing date: 03 Dec 14 (Forecast)

MATTEI DOGAN PRIZE FOR EXCELLENCE IN INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH

International Social Science Council

Description:
The International Social Science Council and Foundation Mattei Dogan invite nominations for their prize for excellence in interdisciplinary research. This prize is awarded to a social scientist who has advanced the scientific knowledge in the social sciences, by crossing the disciplinary boundaries or by recombining different specialities, in his or her research and writings. It can also be offered to a team of scholars enjoying a high reputation in academic circles.

Nominations for the prize can be made by ISCC members or other professional associations in various disciplines, as well as by universities and academic institutions.

The amount of the prize is US$5,000. The laureate will be invited to give a lecture at the event.

DURHAM INTERNATIONAL JUNIOR FELLOWSHIPS

Durham University

Description
Durham University's Institute of Advanced Studies invites applications for its junior fellowships. Fellowships enable individuals to pursue new research ideas of their own design, in collaboration with researchers from Durham university. Researchers are recommended to link their proposals to the following institutes:

- Institute of Advanced Study;
- Durham Business School;
- Durham Energy Institute;
- Biophysical Sciences Institute;
- Institute of Computational Cosmology;
- Institute of Particle Physics Phenomenology;
- Institute of Hazard, Risk and Resilience;
- Wolfson Research Institute;
- Institute of Mediaeval and Renaissance Studies;
- Durham Global Security Institute.

Applicants must not have resided or carried out their main work or study in the country of their host organisation for more than 12 months in the three years immediately prior to the reference date. There are no nationality restrictions, but the award will be on condition of a visa and work permit being secured.
Starting salaries are in the range £30,122-£33,884 per year. The normal period of the fellowship will be two years and up to 15 fellowships are available.

Closing date: 14 Dec 14 (Forecast)
Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. Before applying, applicants must seek the agreement of a Durham academic to act as their host. This call is repeated once a year.

CRM-ISM POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

Centre for Mathematical Research – Centre de Recherches Mathématiques

Description:
The Centre for Mathematical Research (CRM), in partnership with the Institut des Sciences Mathématiques, invites applications for the CRM-ISM postdoctoral fellowships. These are awarded to promising researchers who have recently obtained or expect to obtain a PhD in the mathematical sciences. Applications are welcome in all fields of research in which the CRM and the ISM are actively involved, including:

- actuarial and financial mathematics;
- algebra and number theory;
- analysis;
- applied mathematics;
- category theory;
- combinatorics;
- geometry and topology;
- mathematical methods in medical imaging;
- mathematical physics;
- nonlinear dynamics;
- probability;
- quantum computing;
- statistics.

The theme of the 2014 winter-spring semester will be Lie theory and its applications

Research fellows will be based in ISM member universities, and may request teaching assignments for which they will receive an additional salary. Applicants must have obtained a PhD after 1 December 2008. Priority will be given to candidates who obtained their PhD within the past three years. Preference will be given to candidates who are not currently registered at one of the ISM member universities.

Funding is worth CA$40,000 a year for up to two years.

FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMME

International Society of Nephrology

Description
The International Society of Nephrology invites applications for its global outreach fellowship programme. This provides nephrological training to physicians from emerging countries. Fellows receive training in advanced host institutions, allowing them to acquire knowledge in basic and clinical nephrology, dialysis, transplantation, and epidemiology. The training focuses on providing the exact skills and knowledge specifically required by the home institution; the guiding principle of the programme is that fellows are required to return to their home countries after their training to convey knowledge and experience that they acquired during their fellowship.
Two types of fellowships are offered: long-term awards lasting seven to 12 months and short-term awards lasting two to six months.
Individuals at least 30 years of age who are living and working in developing countries and who have have received basic training in nephrology may apply. Applicants must be able to guarantee a return to their home countries within three months of completing the training. Candidates are encouraged to seek out relationships of their own accord and to benefit from relationships that their institution may already have with other well-established renal centres.

Closing date: 15 Dec 14
Deadline information: Deadlines on: 15 December 2014, 15 June 2015, and repeated annually.

STUDENT RESEARCH SCHOLARSHIPS

Bat Conservation International

Description

Bat Conservation International invites applications for its student research scholarships. These support students in research initiatives that will contribute new knowledge essential to conserving bats and the ecosystems they serve. Projects must specifically answer ecological or behavioural questions essential to conservation or management, resolve economic problems which will further conservation tolerance, document key ecological or economic roles of bats, or educate people directly relevant to conservation success. In addition, research should specifically address at least one of the following areas:

- documentation of bat feeding behaviour, including insect eating, pollination and seed dispersal;
- documentation of roosting needs, including tree, cave and abandoned mine roosts, and development of artificial roosts;
- finding solutions to bat nuisance problems, including nuisance bats in buildings, fruit damage and vampire control;
- anthropogenic impacts on bats and their habitats, including wind energy development and environmental contaminants.

Each scholarship is worth between US$1,000 and US$5,000. Funded projects must commence no later than 31 December of the year in which the award was made.

FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMME

International Society of Nephrology

Description:
The International Society of Nephrology invites applications for its global outreach fellowship programme. This provides nephrological training to physicians from emerging countries. Fellows receive training in advanced host institutions, allowing them to acquire knowledge in basic and clinical nephrology, dialysis, transplantation, and epidemiology. The training focuses on providing the exact skills and knowledge specifically required by the home institution; the guiding principle of the programme is that fellows are required to return to their home countries after their training to convey knowledge and experience that they acquired during their fellowship.

Two types of fellowships are offered: long-term awards lasting seven to 12 months and short-term awards lasting two to six months.

Individuals at least 30 years of age who are living and working in developing countries and who have have received basic training in nephrology may apply. Applicants must be able to guarantee a return to their home countries within three months of completing the training. Candidates are encouraged to seek out relationships of their own accord and to benefit from relationships that their institution may already have with other well-established renal centres.

POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS FOR TRAINING IN CANCER RESEARCH

International Agency for Research on Cancer

Description:
The International Agency for Research on Cancer invites applications for its postdoctoral fellowships for training in cancer research. These enable junior scientists to coordinate and conduct both epidemiological and laboratory research into the causes and prevention of cancer at the IARC in Lyon, France. Fellowships support research in the following disciplines: genetic and molecular epidemiology; biostatistics; bioinformatics; areas related to mechanisms of carcinogenesis, including molecular and cell biology, molecular genetics, epigenetics and molecular pathology.

Applicants may be of any nationality, although preference is given to applicants from low- and medium-resource countries. Applicants should have finished their doctoral degree within five years of the closing date for application, or be in the final phase of completing their doctoral degree. Applicants must be proficient in English at a level sufficient for scientific communication.

The fellowship is tenable for a maximum of two years and includes an annual stipend, the cost of travel for the fellow and, in certain circumstances, a dependant's allowance and health insurance.

Closing date: 31 Dec 14 (Forecast)
Deadline information: Call has not yet been announced by funder but this is the approximate deadline we expect. This call is repeated once a year.

EXPERTISE TRANSFER FELLOWSHIP

International Agency for Research on Cancer

Description:
The International Agency for Research on Cancer invites applications for its expertise transfer fellowship. This enables an established investigator to spend six to 12 months in an appropriate host institute in a low- or medium-resource country. The main objective of this programme is to transfer knowledge and expertise in a research area relevant to the host country and related to the agency's programmes. The awardee will work on a collaborative project in one of the agency's following priority research areas:

- understanding cancer etiology, including infections, nutrition, lifestyle, environment, radiation, genetics;
- developing strategies for cancer prevention, including primary prevention and screening;
- elucidating the underlying mechanisms of carcinogenesis through studies of molecular and cell biology, molecular genetics, epigenetics and molecular pathology.

The agency also has programmes dedicated to describing the global cancer burden and to the evaluation of carcinogenicity through its monographs programme.

Applicants should be established cancer researchers actively engaged in the field with appropriate scientific or medical qualifications and an excellent publications record. They must also belong to the staff of a university or a research institution.

The fellowship will include an annual remuneration of US$ 63,600 according to the length of stay. The fellowships may also include limited support for the project. The cost of travel for the fellow, and in certain circumstances for dependants, will be met, and health insurance will be covered. The fellowship should be taken up no later than 30 November 2014.

The Japanese Respiratory Society invites applications for the Harasawa fellowship. This aims to foster young researchers and specialised respiratory clinicians from countries other than Japan who wish to train in respiratory medicine in Japan.
In principle applications are accepted from young investigators of countries represented by the Asian Pacific Society of Respirology and the Latin American Thoracic Society, but applicants from other countries will also be considered. Applicants must be under 40 years of age, be non-Japanese nationals resident outside Japan and have been accepted to a training institute in Japan. Applications must be submitted in English.
There are three awards available each year. The period of stay must be at least two months. The maximum amount of funding is ¥1 million, which consists of a stipend of ¥150,000 per month, plus ¥250,000.

Closing date: 31 Dec 14
Deadline information: This call is repeated once a year.
